Our view: In this note we highlight key takeaways from the RBC Canadian Industrials Conference.

Key takeaways from RBC Capital Markets Canadian Industrials Conference

Last week (May 19-21), we hosted our annual RBC Canadian Industrials Conference in Toronto with 38 participating companies. From our coverage, companies in attendance included, Waste sector: WCN (see note here). E&C: ARE (see note here), ATRL (see note here), STN (see note here), WSP (see note here). Dealers: TIH (see note here). Auto/related: RBA (see note here), BYD/BGSI (see note here). Below we note key takeaways from the event for our covered companies.

- Waste – Management commentary during calendar Q1 reporting and from the conference indicated that the operating backdrop has directionally improved as the year has progressed, and companies are well positioned relative to the initial guidance metrics (good likelihood of upward revisions to guidance beginning with Q2/26 reporting, in our view). For WCN specifically, management expects fuel surcharges to begin going into effect for the ~55% unhedged exposure in Q2 (100% recovery expected in Q3 onward). As a second derivative impact, the higher oil price environment could also benefit WCN's E&P business. Interestingly, the company expects ~100 bps of margin upside over the coming years driven by AI-driven tools/initiatives.
- E&C – Commentary from the group indicated that the demand environment should get better as 2026 progresses. This view reflected increasing volume of nation-building initiatives in Canada, visibility to a continuation of infrastructure investment in the U.S. via the proposed BUILD America 250 Act (aka Surface Transportation Reauthorization), and stabilization of trends in APAC. With that said, AI-related concerns continue to weigh on share prices/valuation across our global engineering coverage, with most investor questions centered on when the focus may shift from AI risks, and what the market needs to see in order to believe that further development of AI tools/capabilities is not a meaningful risk to the group. In our view, investors are looking for these firms to deliver organic growth and margin progression for a period of time while leveraging these tools, and more immediately, improved organic growth over the course of 2026 should also help (we received some pushback around calendar Q1 reporting on headline organic growth across the group). While capital allocation has historically been focused on M&A for the engineering group, investors have increasingly brought up return of capital during recent discussions (with valuations lower across the group, investors are looking for increased share buyback activity).
- Dealers – The outlook for infrastructure was generally in line with what we heard from the E&C space (visibility improving given the nation-building initiatives), while TIH is starting to see Product Support demand from fleet deliveries completed 2-3 years ago, with demand expected to ramp over the coming years. The company is continuing to invest in the rental fleet ahead of anticipated demand, noting bigger projects typically start with increased demand for rental equipment. On AVL, demand remains robust (industry lead times go out into late-2027/2028; notably, the majority of Toromont's backlog is expected to be delivered in the NTM), with the business primarily serving data centre customers.
- Auto aftermarket/salvage – RBA management highlighted that the long-term secular trend of rising loss rates/increasing cost of repair remain intact. Vehicle complexity also continues to increase, which causes collision repair costs to rise and improves the appeal/economics of choosing the salvage option, all else equal. On the CC&T business, management noted improved YoY customer sentiment as Q1/H1 of last year were impacted by DOGE/tariff-related uncertainty. BYD management reiterated that the long-term +3-5% SSS growth algorithm laid out in the company's 5-year plan remains intact, where the ~2% annual headwind to volumes from ADAS is expected to be more than offset by an increase in miles travelled/the number of vehicles on the road, increasing vehicle complexity, and general inflation.

Required disclosures

Non-U.S. analyst disclosure

One or more research analysts involved in the preparation of this report (i) may not be registered/qualified as research analysts with the NYSE and/or FINRA and (ii) may not be associated persons of the RBC Capital Markets, LLC and therefore may not be subject to FINRA Rule 2241 restrictions on communications with a subject company, public appearances and trading securities held by a research analyst account.

Conflicts disclosures

This product constitutes a compendium report (covers six or more subject companies). As such, RBC Capital Markets chooses to provide specific disclosures for the subject companies by reference. To access conflict of interest and other disclosures for the subject companies, clients should refer to <https://www.rbccm.com/GLDisclosure/PublicWeb/DisclosureLookup.aspx?entityId=1>. These disclosures are also available by sending a written request to RBC Capital Markets Research Publishing, P.O. Box 50, 200 Bay Street, Royal Bank Plaza, 29th Floor, South Tower, Toronto, Ontario M5J 2W7 or an email to rbcinsight@rbccm.com.

The analyst(s) responsible for preparing this research report received compensation that is based upon various factors, including total revenues of the member companies of RBC Capital Markets and its affiliates, a portion of which are or have been generated by investment banking activities of the member companies of RBC Capital Markets and its affiliates.

With regard to the MAR investment recommendation requirements in relation to relevant securities, a member company of Royal Bank of Canada, together with its affiliates, may have a net long or short financial interest in excess of 0.5% of the total issued share capital of the entities mentioned in the investment recommendation. Information relating to this is available upon request from your RBC investment advisor or institutional salesperson.

Explanation of RBC Capital Markets Equity rating system

An analyst's 'sector' is the universe of companies for which the analyst provides research coverage. Accordingly, the rating assigned to a particular stock represents solely the analyst's view of how that stock will perform over the next 12 months relative to the analyst's sector average.

Ratings

Outperform (O): Expected to materially outperform sector average over 12 months.

Sector Perform (SP): Returns expected to be in line with sector average over 12 months.

Underperform (U): Returns expected to be materially below sector average over 12 months.

Restricted (R): RBC policy precludes certain types of communications, including an investment recommendation, when RBC is acting as an advisor in certain merger or other strategic transactions and in certain other circumstances.

Not Rated (NR): The rating, price targets and estimates have been removed due to applicable legal, regulatory or policy constraints which may include when RBC Capital Markets is acting in an advisory capacity involving the company.

Risk Rating

The Speculative risk rating reflects a security's lower level of financial or operating predictability, illiquid share trading volumes, high balance sheet leverage, or limited operating history that result in a higher expectation of financial and/or stock price volatility.

Distribution of ratings

For the purpose of ratings distributions, regulatory rules require member firms to assign ratings to one of three rating categories - Buy, Hold/Neutral, or Sell - regardless of a firm's own rating categories. Although RBC Capital Markets' ratings of Outperform (O), Sector Perform (SP), and Underperform (U) most closely correspond to Buy, Hold/Neutral and Sell, respectively, the meanings are not the same because our ratings are determined on a relative basis.
